MS1169/3/1	Rajah Laut , ex- Chineseren of Arendal (colour slide)	"an 1871 painting of the barque Chineseren that was later bought by the 'real' Captain Lingard and renamed Rajah Laut ... thirty years ago the Norsk Sjøfartsmuseum (Maritime Museum) in Oslo provided me with a colour slide of this painting by Andreas Lind, which at the time was the property of a Mrs Schreuder, Drammensveien 68, Oslo." (to Judith Luna, OUP, 11 May 1991). "The picture in CEW which you had from Lena Brooksbank and she from me was done by Andreas Lind in 1871 (allegedly in London and showing the cliffs of Dover) and is (or was, at least, in 1961) in the possession of Mrs Schreuder ..." (to Sherry, 7 May 1972)	1871

MS1169/3/2	Rajah Laut, ex-Chineseren (b&w print)	(see above)	1871
MS1169/3/3	William Charles Olmeijer, aged 30	“The pictures of Mr and Mrs Olmeijer were given to me by their son [L. Olmeijer of Dordrecht], who was born a few months after Second Mate Korzeniowski visited his parents at their house [...] these photographs can be dated about 1878. Their bad state is a result of the vicissitudes of the family during the Japanese occupation.” (HvM to Richard Curle, 5 April 1967)	c1878
MS1169/3/4	Mrs Olmeijer, née Johanna Cornelia van Lieshout, aged 21	“As you’ll see, the photographs of Olmeijer and his wife barely survived the war. [...] These photographs were taken (probably in Singapore) in 1878. Contrary to the details given in Conrad’s novels, Olmeijer’s father was Eurasian, his mother Indonesian; Mrs Olmeijer’s father was Dutch, her mother probably Eurasian rather than Indonesian.” (HvM to Braun 4 Feb 1968)	c1878
MS1169/3/5	William Lingard and family	Captain William Lingard with his wife and daughter Caroline. “I am pleased to say I have found a small photograph of Cap ^m W ^m , his wife & daughter. It was in a small bible presented to my Mother before her marriage as she was a Sunday School teacher for many years” (Alice Burrow to HvM 29 Oct 1968; cf. HvM to Sherry Dec 68 and 26 Oct 71); “Credit for William Lingard’s photograph should first of all go to Mrs Alice Burrow of Ashton-under-Lyne. The original did not reveal when and where it was made [...]. It is clear that the photograph was made before 6 August 1885, the day Mrs Lingard died. I should think it also predates the daughter’s marriage on 23 May 1884, for from then on Brooksbank would in all likelihood have been shown as a member of the family. Caroline was born on 15 July 1863 [and Julia 1 November 1866] and that date practically precludes the possibility that the photograph was made before 1880. So all we can say [is] that it must date from the early 1880’s. That would almost certainly imply that the photograph was taken in Singapore, since Lingard relinquished his house in Surabaya in 1879 and was considered to reside in Singapore in 1880. That year and the following he was in Singapore at least nine times in between voyages to Berau (1880, 1881, 1882, 1883) and Labuan (1882). He may even have been there the whole time from May 1883 to May 1884 (unless he then went to England and returned to Singapore with his niece Anne – probably without having taken his wife and daughter along, since his nephew James, born Christmas 1879, remembers having seen William, but mentions neither aunt nor cousin).” (to Sherry, 7 May 1972)	1880 – 1884
MS1169/3/6	James William Lingard	“On 16 September, 1961, Mrs Oehlers sent me two photographs of her father through the intermediary of Mrs Froger of the Netherlands consulate-general in Singapore.” (to Sherry 28 Nov 1966); photograph by M. Martin, Singapore	c1882

MS1169/3/7	Johannes Freiesleben	Captain Johannes Freiesleben: copied from originals provided by Freiesleben's nephew, Sven Grønbech, Copenhagen: "it is possible to date the two photographs as taken between November 1886 (his nomination) and September 1889 (his departure for the Congo)" (to Grønbech, 26 Feb 1969; MS1169/2/22)	1886 – 1889

MS1169/3/11	James Lingard with family and friends	James Lingard with his wife and children: "today I received a picture of James Lingard and his six children from a relative of his in England [Mrs Jessie Burrows of Manchester], discovered after a complicated search, the widow of the Lawrence Lingard Burrows mentioned in Dr Sherry's book." (to Braun 28 Jun 68; to Sherry 15 July 68). But: "The family are the daughter & three brothers standing, the boy on the left & the small boy I do not know." (Burrows to Sherry 20 June 68); "The younger lady & gentleman are the people the Lingard family lived with in Singapore. They were an English Solicitor & his wife & I should think the other lady, the mother of one of them." (Burrows to Sherry 3 July 68).	c1892
