MS. 789. Foxwell's letters to R.A. Rye,
 Goldsmiths' Librarian, and others. 1903-16.

Most of the letters listed below were originally part of the University of London Library's records, with a few letters which were probably removed from the University's records. They were collected together and inserted in a bound volume by R.A. Rye, Goldsmiths' Librarian, who was also responsible for the index to the volumes, and for the comments on Foxwell, mentioned below.

Besides the letters, the volume contains:-

- (i) An index, headed 'A guide to the character of the correspondence arranged under convenient headings.' (ff. 5-7)
- (ii) Several leaves originally enclosed by Foxwell in books or MSS. in the Goldsmiths' Library. The leaves contain a short description of each item, with comments on the subject, provenance, etc. The notes have been removed from the books and bear notes in Rye's hand, criticising Foxwell.
